ALTERNATIVES TO TETHERING

Bring Your Dog Indoors

Whatever the breed, your dog wants to be part of your family. Bringing your dog inside will not only make your dog happier and increase your bond with your dog, it will more than likely make you happier too.

Yard Fencing

Installing a fence will prevent your dog from roaming and protect him/her from predators. Consider installing a 45-degree inward fence extension if your dog tends to jump over the fence. To help prevent your dog from digging under the fence, bury chicken wire one foot underground, where the fence meets the ground.

Dog Run

Dog runs are fenced-in areas for dogs to exercise unleashed. It can be constructed from materials available locally or purchased ready to be assembled. As with fences, your dog will need a dog house to protect it from the elements.

Electronic Fencing

There are many variations of pet-safe electronic fencing including wireless, underground, and even indoor electronic fencing, which can help prevent a dog from escaping through an open door.
